

$90 MILLION AGREEMENT GUARANTEES PURSES FOR 3 YEARS

Purse levels in New Jersey were bolstered for the next three years by a decision announced in Trenton on March 3, 2008, but the future of horse racing in the state cannot be ensured without a stable source of funding.

New Jersey Governor Jon S. Corzine issued a statement in which he said that an agreement had been reached for a purse supplement of $90 million which will be distributed over the next three years. In return for the funding, video lottery terminals [VLTs] would be banned from the racetracks for three years.

"Both the equine industry and the casino industry play important roles in New Jersey, from preserving open space to attracting visitors, and it was essential to strike a balance that will allow both industries to thrive," Corzine said. "The agreement involves no taxpayer dollars and will not reduce casino funds that flow to the state."

"It was a bittersweet victory," said SBOANJ President Tom Luchento. "While the standardbred horsemen of New Jersey are grateful for the funding which will allow the state's tracks to maintain their purse levels for the next three years, this agreement is only a stopgap measure. There are also many details to be worked out as far as the distribution of the supplement.

"For the future of the racing and breeding industries in New Jersey, we need to find a permanent solution in the form of other types of gaming at the racetracks so that we can exist on a level playing field with the tracks in the surrounding states – New York, Pennsylvania and Delaware – which already have VLTs or slots," he said.

"I want to thank the trainers, drivers, breeders, owners and caretakers for their patience, support and understanding as we worked to obtain this agreement," he noted. "It took a lot longer than it should have, and we still have a great deal of work to do.

"We want the New Jersey Sire Stakes Program to be better funded and, to that end, have initiated legislation in Trenton to do so," Luchento explained. "However, there is a rather bleak fiscal picture in Trenton. The Governor has proposed cuts in spending and of three departments, including agriculture. So this is an even more difficult task.

"We thank the legislators and the Governor's office for their mediation in this matter," Luchento noted.

"We thank Senate President Richard Codey, who has always championed the horse racing industry's cause; Senators Beck and Sarlo, who have racetracks in their districts; Senator Whelan, who supported the subsidy whenever he talked to casino operators in his Atlantic City district; Assembly Speaker Joe Roberts for his leadership role; Assemblymen Cohen, Malone and Dancer for sponsoring legislation to help fund an appropriation for the New Jersey Sire Stakes, and other legislators too numerous to mention who have been in our corner."

GROWTH OF SBOANJ.COM EXPLODES

The website of the Standardbred Breeders & Owners Association of New Jersey – www.sboanj.com – is the place to visit for breaking news, applications and forms, phone numbers and information of value to owners, trainers, drivers, caretakers and breeders.

The stats do indicate that more people than ever are finding their way to the website, which debuted on June 21, 2005.

In March 2007, the number of visitors was 1,805 and hits were only 18,128.

For the month of February 2008, records were set in all usage categories including 7,810 unique visitors and 120,344 hits.

From the Desk of President Tom Luchento

The purse supplement agreement has been secured but do not think the battle is over.

Like many negotiations, the efforts to obtain the three-year $90 million casino subsidy [see page 1] were filled with much drama and frustrations.

But we cannot rest on this “gift” because we know that the gift givers are not overly gracious about being put in this position, and we need to find our own sources of income that will make it possible for us to guarantee that New Jersey racing and breeding remain preeminent in the country.

Even before the bruises from this challenge have healed, we need to formulate a plan to secure VLTs or slots for the New Jersey racetracks.

Horse racing cannot stand alone. When the new subsidy runs out, there is little doubt that VLTs will need to be on the table for consideration.

We need to play a role in the efforts to bring sports gambling to New Jersey. Toward that end, at our request, our friends in the state legislature amended the proposed legislation to include the racetracks, along with the casinos, as the administrators of sports gambling, should the federal restrictions be lifted.

I want to thank the horsemen at both Freehold and the Meadowlands who met with me and offered me their support to do whatever it would take to get us to this point.

The reception we received in the legislature was gratifying, especially the contributions of Senator Codey and Senator Beck, who understand and support our efforts.

I want to thank the SBOANJ directors as well as our lobbyist Leon Zimmerman for their efforts on behalf of this subsidy. For many of us, this was a task that involved endless meetings, phone calls and emails that interrupted meals, weekends and holidays.

We delayed this edition of the Pacesetter to make sure we had this great news to share with you.

In closing, I want to note that after more than 25 years of serving as editor of the Pacesetter, and several years as editor of the old New Jersey Standardbred magazine, Leon Zimmerman is going to concentrate on the governmental affairs lobbying he has also been doing for 34 years. He has served this industry in New Jersey very well, and this casino subsidy issue has shown how vital those qualities have been.

WINDSONG'S LEGACY: Triple Crown winner Windsong's Legacy, the Trotter of the Year in 2004, died March 1, 2008 at Perretti Farms in Cream Ridge, NJ. He was in the midst of his fourth breeding season. His first foals are scheduled to race this spring. "There are a lot of mares, our own included, who will be looking to go somewhere else," noted Perretti Farm's spokesman Bob Marks. "The books of most comparable stallions are closed. To accommodate those who were contracted to Windsong's Legacy and want to stay with a New Jersey stallion, I'll keep the books open for Muscles Yankee and Revenue."

MCKEE NAMED NEW JERSEY EQUESTRIAN OF 2008

Meagan McKee in front!

That might be the call if her father, Sam McKee, track announcer at the Meadowlands, was at the microphone.

Instead, he was on the sidelines along with wife, Christine, and 16-year-old twin sisters, Lindsey and Melissa, when Meagan was named 2008 New Jersey Equestrian at the New Jersey Breeders Award Dinner on January 27, 2008 in East Windsor.

The entrants were judged on poise, personality, ability to communicate and knowledge of horses.

ZIMMERMAN: COMMUNICATORS' NOM

Leon Zimmerman, legislative counsel for the SBOANJ and a longtime journalist and publicist, is one of two 2008 nominees for the Communicators' Corner of the Hall of Fame in Goshen, NY.

The nomination of Zimmerman and Florida-based John Berry will go to the membership of the United States Harness Writers Association for a vote.

A former reporter, editor and bureau chief with the Bergen Record, Zimmerman has been a Trenton lobbyist for more than three decades.

He has served the SBOANJ as a public relations consultant and legislative counsel. He is also the publicist for the New Jersey Sire Stakes. His love of harness racing includes ownership of a small stable of horses.

Zimmerman previously edited the New Jersey Standardbred magazine and the Pacesetter, and has written news releases, speeches and legislative testimony, contributing to the key racing-related legislation in New Jersey since the 1970s.

His concept of exhibition races for legislators helped to introduce members of both the state assembly and senate to a hands on racing experience, beginning with then Governor Christine Todd Whitman in 1994.

PACESETTER'S NEW EDITOR DEBUTS

This issue of the Pacesetter marks the first under the editorial and design direction of Carol Hodes.

Hodes, who was media relations director at the Meadowlands, took the New Jersey Sports & Exposition Authority's buyout in January 2007 and joined the SBOANJ in June, providing website content.

She became the SBOANJ public relations director in January 2008, continuing her duties with the website, sboanj.com, as well as the Pacesetter, which publishes every other month.

Hodes, a sports reporter for the Newark Star-Ledger from 1974 to 1981, was a racing publicist at the Meadowlands and Monmouth Park for 25 years.

Meagan McKee, representing both the New Jersey Horse Council and the New Jersey 4-H Program, received a $500 scholarship which will come in handy when she enters the University of Kentucky in the fall.

Meagan McKee

McKee, a senior at North Warren Regional High School, turned 18 on January 25. She has competed in the 4-H program for eight years and received numerous honors for public speaking and horsemanship. She is a webmaster for both her high school cross country team and the Chaps 'N Breeches 4-H Club, competed on the basketball and softball teams and works at a draft horse farm in Stillwater, not far from the family home in Blairstown, NJ

In her oral presentation for the contest, McKee said:

"I have grown up with horses since I was the age of two. With that being said, it is truly impossible to ignore the major impact that horses have had upon my life. Horses have influenced everything from how I live to where I live. There is not a single aspect of my life that has gone untouched by horses in some way, shape or form, and personally, I wouldn't have it any other way. Because of my association with horses, I have come to a noteworthy conclusion; despite their four legs and a tail, horses are capable of being some of the greatest teachers. Horses can teach people some of life's hardest lessons that no text book or instruction manual could ever accomplish. From patience to responsibility and respect to determination, horses can cover it all. The three most important lessons that horses have taught me over the years are those in work ethic, commitment, and confidence."

In her essay, she addressed the problems facing New Jersey racing and need for slot machines at the state's tracks.

"In my opinion, one of the most immediate problems facing the Equine Industry in New Jersey today is the conflict between our state's racetracks and casinos," she wrote. "Unless we find a way to substantially increase the revenue at the tracks, the competition from neighboring states, whose racetracks are equipped with slot machines, could cripple New Jersey's racing business."

She concluded with the warning: "If we cannot figure out how to co-exist with the casinos, the racing industry will not be around for much longer which would be devastating to the entire state of New Jersey."

HORSE-LOVING MILLSTONE MAYOR IGNITES LOCAL PUSH FOR VLT'S

Nancy Grbelja is not kidding when she says that Millstone Township is horse friendly.

As the mayor of the 37 square mile community in southwestern Monmouth County, she has ignited a grassroots effort to bring video lottery terminals [VLTs] to the racetracks in New Jersey.

None of those racetracks are in Millstone but many of the people who live in the township of 9,000 are impacted by the fate of the state's racing industry.

On November 7, the Millstone Township Committee approved a resolution, proposed by Grbelja, supporting VLTs, and sent it on to the governor and other state and county leaders. She also used her influence to involve neighboring municipalities, county and state officials in the pursuit of measures to preserve farmland.

"Horses and all that goes with them improve the quality of life for all residents in New Jersey," Grbelja said.

On February 20, Grbelja hosted State Sen. Jennifer Beck and Monmouth County Freeholder Director Lillian Burry at the township's meeting to discuss help for the racing industry.

"We need a long range plan that puts VLTs at the track, preferably under the racing commission's control," she said.

"The Monmouth County Board of Chosen Freeholders has come on board and is drafting a resolution as well," she added.

Nancy Grbelja

"They realize the negative impact that a failed racing industry will have on Monmouth County as well.

"As a result of my appearance at the last Freeholder's meeting, she [Lillian Burry] is looking to establish a Monmouth County Equine Commission to address the concerns of the equine community in Monmouth County," Grbelja noted. "I will be serving on that commission."

Grbelja, who moved to Millstone in 1997 and was elected to the committee in 2004, has personal reasons to support the equine community in Millstone - she is a horse owner - but she also has practical and political reasons.

"Horses are crucial to the Open Space and Farmland Preservation Program in the state," said Grbelja, who taught science at Freehold High School from 1976 until 1993 when she went to work for the NJ Education Association, representing Middlesex County employees. "Millstone has approximately 6,000 acres in the program and would be devastated by the mass exodus of horsemen. In Monmouth County alone, there are over 960 horse operations, over 27,000 acres for equine facilities, 19,000 acres of other equine related land and almost 16,000 acres of hay and grain production.

"The horse industry keeps the land functional," she explained. "Without horses there would be no need to grow hay and grain; the land would become vacant, nonproductive and difficult to maintain.

"Taxes would increase tremendously because for every dollar of open space, it cost only 57 cents to maintain," she noted. "If that land is converted to housing, for every dollar the township must spend at least $1.67 to maintain."

In the fall of 2004, Grbelja, who grew up in North Bergen, adopted her first horse, Sandra Letsgo, from the Standardbred Retirement Foundation and two months later added Dukes Nuke, both of whom are riding horses. She also has four racehorses in training with Ron Turcotte Sr.

TRIO OF NJ TROTTERS CAPTURE 2007 DAN PATCH AWARDS

The gala Night of Champions on January 27, 2008 at the Dover Downs Hotel included the presentation of divisional championship awards to three New Jersey-sired trotters.

Among those taking home the United States Harness Writers Association's Dan Patch Awards were Two-Year-Old Trotting Colt of the Year Deweycheatumnhowe, Two-Year-Old Trotting Filly of the Year Snow White and Older Trotting Mare of the Year Mystical Sunshine.

Deweycheatumnhowe, winner of all 10 of his starts, is by Muscles Yankee, who stands at Perretti Farms in Cream Ridge, NJ. The flawless Dewey, who captured the $692,692 Valley Victory and $650,000 Breeders Crown, completed 2007 with a bankroll of $936,191.

Driver-trainer Ray Schnittker co-owns the colt with Ted Gewertz, Charles Iannazzo and the Deweycheatumnhowe Stable.

Snow White, a daughter of Self Possessed [who stood at Kentuckiana Farms of New Jersey], won 11 of her 13 starts, earning $1.25 million. The Kevin Lare trainee was driven in all her starts by John Campbell. The filly trotted a mile in 1:52.4 at the Lexington's Red Mile, a world record for a two-year-old [male or female].

Stakes victories for Snow White, who races in the name of North State Street Stable, Harness The Power and Jerry Silva, included the $650,000 Breeders Crown, $679,068 Goldsmith Maid and the $558,138 Oakville.

Mystical Sunshine, sired by Kentuckiana Farms of New Jersey's Yankee Glide, set world records on five-eighths and half-mile tracks.

The six-year-old trotting mare banked $337,070 with eight wins, four seconds and two thirds from 19 starts. Trained by Chris Ryder and racing for the Sidney Korn and the Estate of Alvin Jacobson, Mystical Sunshine won the $250,000 Breeders Crown as well as the $116,000 Miss Versatility.

A crowd of more than 420 attended the banquet at which Tell All, who begins his stallion career at Kentuckiana of New Jersey in 2008, was honored as 2007 Pacer of the Year, and Donato Hanover took home honors as both Trotter of the Year and Horse of the Year.

A week later on February 2, New Jersey-breds Snow White and Mystical Sunshine added 2007 divisional titles north of the border, winning O'Brien Awards, honoring the best horses racing in Canada.

SVENSSON NAMED HTA CARETAKER OF THE YEAR

Fia Svensson, whose protégés included New Jersey Sire Stakes champion Better Than Most, Hambletonian Oaks runner up Resortful and Breeders Crown winner Southwind Serena, was named 2007 Caretaker of the Year by Harness Tracks of America and Hanover Shoe Farms.

The winner, chosen by a committee of racing executives and officials who groomed horses themselves earlier in their careers, is symbolic of the dedication and sacrifices of all caretakers everywhere.

Svensson, 22, who currently works with the Jonas Czernyson stable, earned recognition for her overall work ethic and selfless contributions to her horses.

Svensson will receive an oil painting of herself and a favorite horse of her choosing, as well as one of the Hanover-HTA jackets that goes to all caretakers named as nominees.

The four runners-up in the Caretaker of the Year competition were Kelly Prinz, caretaker of Lis Mara; Mary Ceaser, groom in a small Massachusetts family stable; Mario Glynn, who groomed two million-dollar winners – Our Lucky Killeen and Moving Pictures – in Casie Coleman's Ontario stable; and Diana Fagnani, a groom for more than 20 years in the Jim Groff stable in Pennsylvania.

PAIR OF ARTSPPLACE COLTS CAPTURE WINTER SERIES FINALS

Two sons of the late New Jersey stallion, Artsplace, captured Winter Series Finals on February 23, 2008 at the Meadowlands.

Three-year-old My Masterpiece was a 50-1 upset winner of the $81,500 Junior Trendsetter while four-year-old Artist's View captured the $71,800 Aquarius.

My Masterpiece paid $102.20 to win and clocked a mile in 1:53.

"When we got to the gate, I turned my head and saw [1-5 favorite Scape Ghost] was off the gate, so I just stepped out of there," winning driver Daniel Dube said. "It turned out to be a good trip. I was third on the rail and finally found some room at the right time."

Scape Ghost, a son of Artiscape who had won both of his Junior Trendsetter prelims, held on for second, a half-length back. Harley D Hanover, a son of Western Hanover, was third to complete the all-New Jersey sired trifecta.

My Masterpiece was a $65,000 yearling purchase by David Schneider of Coral Springs, FL and Rocco Maniello of Malba, NY. The Tim Case trainee improved his record to two wins in five career starts.

Artist's View, who won the 2007 Junior Trendsetter and wrapped up his sophomore campaign with a victory in the Breeders Crown Three-Year-Old Colt Pace on November 24, paced a stakes record equaling 1:50.2 to win the Aquarius.

Artist's View's time matched the stakes record shared by Die Lute [2000] and Live Out Loud [2005].

With George Brennan at the lines, Artist's View improved his career record to 10 wins, two seconds and three thirds from 27 starts, banking $520,635 for the DM Stables of Naples, FL and William Rufenacht of Archbold, OH.

"You know, they were going too [fast] for me," Brennan said. "So I ducked in and when Brian [Sears with Mr Apples, who finished second] moved, I moved with him. He had pressure from both sides but at the top of the lane, he dug right in. Buzz [trainer Buzzy Sholty] did a good job bringing him back.

Big Business [who was third] is a quality racehorse as is Mr. Apples, so you know they'll always give you an anxious moment.

"He [Artist's View] has come back stronger and a little bigger," Brennan noted. "If Buzz can keep him right, I think [he can be a top open pacer]."

The third Winter Series Final on the night, the $75,700 Exit 16W in the tenth race, went to Iowa-bred Panaramic Art who extended his winning streak to 20 and paced a stakes record of 1:49.4. Brennan was in the sulky of the Al Meyer trainee.
